

Standing his ground: Karpal telling the Speaker: "I have a right to be here" as the police wait to escort him out in May 1981.

Tiger, tiger who burned bright

Over the decades, Karpal Singh left his mark on the Malaysian scene as a lawyer and politician.

Three's company: Karpal with Tunku Abdul Rahman and Lim Kit Siang in the late 1980s.

Roar-ing to go: Karpal as the Bukit Gelugor parliamentary seat candidate posing beside an image of a tiger last year.

Old friends: Karpal with Lim Kit Siang in 1978.

Moment of victory: Karpal celebrating with family members and supporters after his release from ISA detention in 1989.

Charismatic: A young Karpal delivering a speech at the University of Singapore in 1963.

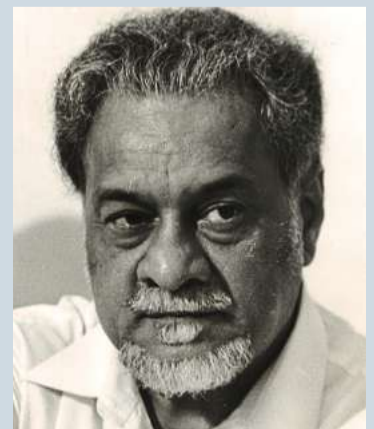

Proud to serve: Karpal donning his lawyer's wig in the 1970s.

Earnest candidate: Karpal contested for the Alor Setar parliament and state seats in 1974.

Fresh graduate: Karpal was called to the bar in 1970.

Political foray: Karpal contested for DAP in the Prai by-election in 1991.